I would like to express my gratitude to a couple of people for helping the accomplishment of this M. A. thesis. First of all, my appreciation goes to my adviser Professor Jerome F. Keating, who gave me a lot of useful advices and guidance of the thesis. It was him that introduced me A Clockwork Orange and gave me great inspiration. Also, I am grateful to some other teachers of the graduate institute: Professor I-lu Teng, who taught me how to write a thesis; Professor Shan-hsiung Ting, who gave me good guidance of basic literary theories; Professor Chung-chih Lin, who taught me how to do literary reading and criticism and how to do a research. In addition, I would like to thank Professor Tim Fox of English Department in particular. It was him that introduced me Brighton Rock in my college time.

Besides, I want to thank my schoolmates and the secretary of the graduate institute, who helped me a lot on the direction and construction of my M. A. thesis. The time with them will be unforgettable to me.

Finally, I appreciate my parents for their economic and spiritual supports. Without them I could not make it.

The thesis is dedicated to those who wholeheartedly try to help young offenders and their family breakdowns.
